

My Invention

By Beibhinn McCaffrey!

My invention is a robot that will do your homework for you! It is called a homework-bot. All you have to do is put a button on your wrist and it will stick to you until you try to take it off. Only you can press the button and when you do press it purposely it pops off your wrist and it forms into a small spider-like being. It walks onto your homework and does it for you. You still learn because as it works it downloads the data of what you need to learn to your brain.

It is a very useful robot as only you can see it.

When other people try to see it they only see you doing the work while the robot is actually doing it and you are just chilling back on the chair as the data flows to your brain.

It is the same on your wrist the people who try only see your skin!

You can even go through the best security in the world and it won't detect anything!

Another thing the homework-bot can do is if you are reading a book the homework-bot secretly plugs in their invisible earphones and in a nice calm voice it tells you the words in the book. If you fall asleep the homework-bot goes back to being normal like nothing ever happened.
